FOR GROUP DISCUSSION

1. Discuss friendship as explained and modeled by Jesus. How is it different from "friendship" we commonly see in the world? What would us being friends, like Jesus is a friend, look like in our relationships?
2. In what ways do we, like Peter, refuse the friendship of Jesus? One another's friendship?
3. What would friendship with a person outside of Christ look like? What are the goals of such friendships? How do we accomplish those goals?

“I have found a friend in Jesus, he’s everything to me,” an old gospel song says. Jesus as friend seems to take a back seat to other Jesus identifiers (“Savior,” “Lord,” “Redeemer,” “Intercessor,” etc.), and perhaps rightly so. But as Jesus closes down his earthly sojourn, he emphasizes friendship to his disciples, which seems to be the culmination of his relationship-building, purpose-transferring interaction with them. (cf. especially John’s account of Jesus’ last days)

The special challenge for us is that Jesus urges us to be friends with others as he is a friend to us. (Application is always challenging, yes?) As we walk along with Jesus today, our present ideas about friendship may be challenged. Let’s listen and observe carefully, as Jesus teaches us by words and example.

Glenn
